

PADI Nitrox SPECIALTY

COURSE OVERVIEW

Enriched air, commonly called Nitrox, is a blend of oxygen and nitrogen that has a higher percentage of oxygen than normal air. The extra oxygen means that you don't absorb nitrogen as quickly at depth, meaning you can extend your no-decompression time. Over the 1 evening and days diving, you will learn all the advantages and disadvantages in using Enriched Air Nitrox.

PREREQUISITES

- PADI Open Water Diver
- 15-years of age
- Dive Equipment (rental equipment is available for hire or see below for special discount on purchases)

COURSE DETAILS

The Enriched Air Nitrox course is completed over one evening and a day. Dive World can facilitate personalised courses which can be scheduled to suit individual needs.

WHAT WILL I LEARN?

- Advantages and disadvantages of diving with enriched air
- Equipment used for enriched air diving
- Using the Recreational Dive Planner with enriched air
- Managing oxygen exposure
- Diving emergencies and enriched air
- Analysing the gas mix in your tank
